Objectives of the Course		The rapid development in science and technology, which started in the 20th century and still continues, has also been effective in the field of communication as it has been in every field and led scientists to define the past century as gelişme information age bilim. In parallel with the development of mass media, the increase in the diversity of communication channels has brought about the problem of content filling, while on the other hand, the problem of how to reach the in right information içerik in the abundance of taraf information ir and u information K has been revealed. The fact that the quantitative increase in communication channels is not reflected to the quality at the same rate is seen as one of the important factors triggering the problem described above. With the support of the electronic media, the diversity of the channels offered by the technology creates a center of attraction for children from adults to adults. Under this intense information, especially children, without the chance to choose the material presented and unconsciously directly receive and are affected at that rate. The easy accessibility of mass media means that various publications, which can be effective in every field from individual to society, come into our house and cause not only adults but also children to be influential. The aim of this course is to explain the effects of popular culture and consumption culture on individuals, to inform them about how social media and other media should be affected by individuals and to inform them about how they should use social media in order to reach the right information.
